Energy codes, such as California Title 24 and those based on ASHRAE 90.1 ("the benchmark for commercial building energy codes") and the International Energy Conservation Code (IECC), set mandatory requirements for building construction and retrofits. Lutron, a leader in the lighting control industry with proven expertise in energy efficiency, is teaming up with NECA's ELECTRICAL CONTRACTOR magazine to present a FREE one-hour webinar on "Understanding Energy Codes and the Impact on Your Business" to help you become an energy codes expert and use this knowledge to avoid trouble and win more business. It's happening Thursday, April 30 (starting at 2:00pm EDT; 11:00am PDT). The panelists (EC Publisher John Maisel; Gerard Darville, PE, CEM, Lutron; and Terry C. Coleman, Director, Electrical Training ALLIANCE) will deliver an insightful presentation so you can learn about the major aspects of energy codes that affect electrical contractors in the lighting controls arena, simple strategies to help your customers comply, and products and tools to complete the project. Contractors, estimators, project managers, foremen, business development managers, and service managers are urged to attend.
